

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

PREFACE.

FROM the peculiar circumstances under which this Supplement appears, it seems necessary to offer a few general remarks upon the Fasti, and the occasion and mode of its compilation :—

When first I perceived, with some surprise, that no collected notices of Cathedral appointments in the Church of Ireland existed, with the exception of the very important and valuable work of Sir James Ware, which is confined entirely to the Prelates, I resolved to make an attempt to remedy the deficiency as opportunities might arise ; and I thought that such a work, if carefully and accurately compiled, was due and might be acceptable to the Irish Church, which had most kindly received, and liberally endowed me. For that purpose I made it my business to travel to every Diocesan Registry throughout Ireland, and by leave of the several Bishops was enabled to examine all the books of Titles, &c., remaining in those offices, and extract from them such particulars as might suit my purpose.

I also obtained permission from the Government to make transcripts from the public records in such depositories as Bermingham Tower, the Herald's Office, the Custom House, the Four Courts, the King's Inns, &c. ; and was also permitted by the authorities to examine the manuscripts in the Libraries of Trinity College, of Archbishop Marsh, Christ Church Cathedral, and those of the Archbishop of Dublin, and the Dean of St. Patrick's. I was also favoured with an inspection of the Chapter books of several Cathedrals, and likewise had access to the old annual and triennial visitation books of all the Dioceses within the Province of Cashel. Besides these and other Manuscript authorities supplied by private friends, I had of course the use of printed books, such as the report of the Commissioners of Public Records in Ireland, the "Liber Munerum Publicorum Hiberniæ," the Royal Patents, so far as printed, the Works of Sir James Ware, Archdall's "Monasticon Hibernicum," "The State Papers," Mason's History of St Patrick's Cathedral, and various others.

As this was to be an undertaking entirely confined to myself, it was necessary that I should be independent both as to the time and the order of publication, I resolved therefore to be my own publisher.

As I found that few people here have much relish for recitals of dry matters of fact, such as form the main staple of the Fasti, I printed only a limited number of copies, and as during the progress of the work I gave away many separate parts to friends in various Dioceses who assisted me in my enquiries, I apprehend that the number of complete sets is now limited.

The Fasti at first was published in separate Parts, commencing in 1845, and these were afterwards consolidated into volumes. Vol. I., containing the Dioceses of Waterford and Lismore, Cashel and Emly, Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, Limerick Ardfert and Aghadoe, Killaloe and Kilfenora, in 1847. Of this volume a second edition, revised and enlarged, was issued in 1851. Vol. II., comprising the Dioceses of Dublin, Glendaloch, and Kildare, and Ossory, Ferns, and Leighlin, appeared in 1848. Vol. III., containing Armagh and Clogher, Meath, Kilmore and Ardagh, Down, Connor, and Dromore, Derry and Raphoe, appeared in 1849. Vol. IV., containing all the Dioceses within the Province of Tuam, viz., Tuam, Killala, and Achonry, Elphin, Clonfert, and Kilmacduagh, appeared in 1850. To this last was added a short Appendix, showing the Consecrations of all the Irish Prelates since the Reformation down to that year, so far as could be ascertained. To these was added, in 1860, Vol. V., consisting of illustrations, corrections, and additions, bringing the list of Appointments down to the latter year; also general Indexes to the whole work, the voluntary contribution of my friend, John Ribton Garstin, Esq., Treasurer of the Royal Irish Academy.

THE PRESENT SUPPLEMENT.

After the publication of Vol. V., I conceived that my labours in this field were finished ; I was then 70 years of age, and my eyesight had become impaired. From that time I became less careful than before in noting down every Cathedral appointment as it occurred, being well content to leave any continuation of the Fasti to younger and more active hands.

When, in 1869, the heavy blow was struck which deprived the Clergy both of their privileges and their property at the close of the year 1870, it began to be regretted that there was no book showing the appointments to places in Cathedrals during the ten years subsequent to the issue of Vol. V. ; but no continuation of the work was forthcoming ; men were not very willing to involve themselves in a proceeding which was sure to be both tedious and troublesome, while it promised no commensurate advantage in a financial point of view. Repeated applications were made to me to devise some mode of filling up the lacuna ; under ordinary circumstances I could not have felt myself warranted in declining any duty which the Church might think fit to require from me, but in this case the thing was quite impossible,—the task sought to be imposed on me was far too heavy for my shoulders at that time. I had long been too blind to write legibly or to read a page either of manuscript or print, and, from bodily infirmity, was unable to go about as formerly, in order to collect the necessary information. In this dilemma, when all other means seemed to fail, my son, Charles Philip Cotton, B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, most seasonably came forward and offered, with the help of my MSS. and the valuable notes made by Mr. Garstin,* to arrange, with his help, the materials of a projected Supplement, and superintend its publication.

By the “Irish Church Act” of 1869 it was ordered, that all the original books in the Diocesan Registries should be transmitted to Dublin, and deposited with the “Church Commissioners,” and they very courteously permitted my son to have access to all the Records which had thus come into their hands, and to copy from them the authentic information which was necessary for his purpose, and which is here presented to the public : indeed, I am bound to say, that in this, as well in all former portions of my work, I have experienced from all persons in authority,

* That gentleman has collected much additional material for an enlarged edition of the “Fasti,” but only the portion relating to the period between 1860 and 1870 came within the scope of the present Supplement.

the most polite and cordial attention, and the utmost readiness to forward my endeavours. The Prelates also have ever been most ready to assist me, and I have recently received lists of their various publications from the hands of the Primate, the Archbishop of Dublin, the Bishops of Killaloe, Limerick, and Derry ; also, from many others of the Clergy, among whom Dean Hoare, of Waterford (since deceased) and those two learned and zealous antiquaries, Dean Reeves of Armagh, and the Rev. James Graves, Treasurer of Kilkenny : Rev. Dr. Lee, Archdeacon of Dublin, Rev. Dr. Reichel, Rev. Dr. Quarry, and the Rev. Dr. Graves (late Prebendary of Brigown, Cork), are to be specially mentioned ; likewise from many others of my clerical brethren I have received frequent suggestions and information, for which all have my warmest thanks.

And here I ought not to omit specially thanking Dr. Travers, Librarian of St. Patrick's Cathedral, for the interesting account of the restoration of that Cathedral, which will be found at page 68.

On consideration of the question, at what point the entries in the Supplement ought to commence, it was judged advisable ;—

1. To begin in every Diocese with the persons in every rank last named in the four volumes, adding any further information respecting them subsequently obtained. These Dignitaries appear in ITALIC CAPITALS.

2. Next, to repeat (for the necessity of avoiding multiplication of references), all the appointments mentioned in Vol. V., with any additional information which may have been since gained ; and

3. To continue that list down to the 31st of December, 1870, the day on which the Act of Disestablishment came into full operation. From that period a similar record of the Fasti of the same Church, "cast down but not destroyed," will doubtless continue to be recorded, but on a much wider field, and by far more able hands.

Above all is not my utmost gratitude justly due to that Gracious Providence, which, now on the approaching close of a life unusually prolonged and enriched with countless blessings, permits me to witness the completion of this last fragment of my poor services offered to the Church of Ireland.

His Library included a fine and rare collection of early-printed Bibles and Prayer-books, which was dispersed by auction in London a short time previous to his death, which occurred on Feb. 16, 1872. He was buried in the Cathedral of Waterford.

A Review of the Bishop of Ossory’s Plea from the Bible and the Bible alone, for the Doctrine of Baptismal Regeneration.

Dublin, 1874.

Also several Sermons preached on special occasions, and published by request.

The Editor is aware that for a long course of years the Archdeacon had not been considered a member of the Chapter. In fact, the Archdeacon of a Diocese is not a Cathedral officer, and therefore has not a right to claim a place in the 'FASTI'; but the case of Waterford is a singular exception to the general rule, and as this exception has now been removed, he has thought it best to insert the Archdeacon's name among those of his brethren of similar rank, although the date of his formal recognition does not come within the period embraced in this Publication.

Since the publication of the 'FASTI' the Succession not only of Bishops and Cathedral Officers, but of all Incumbents, in these Dioceses, has been published, with much illustrative matter, in three volumes, entitled "The Clerical and Parochial Records of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross", by W. In the charter of 16th of Charles II. (1643), the names of Vicars are given as in Vol. ii. p. 204. They are thirteen in number, and to each of the two last is given a half-Vicar-Chorality "for the present."—(Mason.)

It appears that this existence of half-Vicars was afterwards regularly perpetuated.

By Act of Parliament, 14 and 15 Vic. c. 82 (1851), the emoluments of the offices of the Præcentor's Vicar, Chancellor's Vicar, and Archdeacon of Dublin's Vicar, were appropriated, on next avoidances, to the Economy Fund of the Cathedral, as well as the emoluments of the offices of the two Minor Canons, that should first fall vacant.

ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL.

St. Patrick's Cathedral, a twelfth century church,* in the first pointed, or early English style, but with an intermixture of the semicircular arch in the transepts, had been for the greater part preserved until the eighteenth century was far advanced. Works of repair and alterations had introduced some specimens of later styles. The ground plan being, like that of most great churches, cruciform, the structure itself consisted of nave, choir, a north and a south transept, all with aisles, and an eastern chapel, which, if not absolutely contemporary, must have been a very early addition. In the fourteenth century Archbishop Minot added the tower, which stands engaged in the external wall of the north aisle of the nave, and on this tower there was superimposed, in the eighteenth century, a lofty spire, but little harmonizing with the antient edifice. There does not appear to have been any Chapter-house : if there was, all trace of it has been lost.

There being no means provided for keeping the fabric in repair, except a very scanty œconomy fund, the inevitable consequence ensued of a sure though slow decay. The north transept, which had been assigned to the parishioners of St. Nicholas Without, to be used as their parish church, had be-

"Anno 1191."

"This year the Bishops of Armagh and Dublin together with the Legate O'Hemay consecrated St. Patrick's Church, which lieth in the suburbs of Dublin, on St. Patrick's day, goeing in a procession from the Blessed Trinity in Dublin, and gave it to God and our Blessed Lady Mary and St. Patrick."

"this account was taken out of an antient book of Roger Cradoks Bishop of Waterford and now in the custody of the Lord Viscount Chichester the 26th day of December 1623 by Miles Maguire."

come an unroofed ruin in the eighteenth century, and so remained for nearly fifty years, before it was rebuilt with little, if any, conformity to the structure of which it was a portion. The eastern chapel, dedicated to the B.V.M., had been granted to a congregation of French refugees, and on that congregation becoming extinct, was used as a chapter-house, but had to be taken down and rebuilt on the old plan and foundation.

Notwithstanding all the exertions of the Dean and Chapter much of the church was fast hastening to ruin, when the late Sir Benjamin Lee Guinness interposed with an offer to give eighteen thousand pounds for the reparation of the church.

As the works proceeded, Sir Benjamin found that the sum proposed should not only be exceeded, but should be many times multiplied before his plan of restoration could be realized, as ultimately was done by his unhesitating munificence. The south and north aisles were rebuilt ; a south and a north porch added ; the clerestory repaired ; the triforium entirely restored ; the huge perpendicular window (which had been entirely renewed by Dean Dawson) removed, three lancet windows, conformably to the original plan, being replaced in its stead ; the flying buttresses rebuilt ; stained-glass windows provided ; the throne, the stalls, and other fittings of the choir entirely renewed ; a new organ provided ; the ring of bells completed ; an ornamental cross placed on the summit of the spire ; and everything that appeared requisite to the solemnities of the Divine Service having been furnished with unsparing generosity, the Cathedral, truly restored, was reopened for public worship in 1865.
